Thirty Or More Die In Storms

East and Far West Feel the Frenzy of Cold And Hurricane

By The Associated Press

Winds up to hurricane force tore at the east Saturday while the region's worst blizzard was pounding at the far west.

The elements were wound up to such a violent frenzy that "stay home" warnings were issued for persons in New York state, the Pacific northwest and some Rocky mountain areas.

At least 30 persons were blown or crushed to death, frozen, drowned, or killed in traffic mishaps caused by the storms. Damage was widespread.

The eastern winds shattered plate glass windows, toppled trees and power lines and even blew a bus off the road. One man was killed at Stowe, Vt., when 70 miles-an-hour winds blew a tree down on his automobile.

The western blizzard was traveling eastward. In its path were Montana, Wyoming, the Dakotas, Kansas and Nebraska.

Arkansas Streams High
The flood threat in the midwest was expected to ease with the advent of lower temperatures. But in Arkansas, four rivers swollen by melting ice and heavy rains rose to danger points, forcing evacuation of numerous lowland residents.

In the California citrus areas, growers were warned to start heating citrus orchards early Saturday night to prepare for an expected temperature reading of 10 degrees below freezing. Los Angeles had its first snow since Jan. 11, 1949.

Nine persons perished and two were missing in the Pacific northwest's worst blizzard of the century. Two of the victims were children who froze to death as they struggled toward their farm home in eastern Washington. An elderly man froze to death in Seattle, and five Washington state residents died in highway accidents resulting from snow and ice conditions. A crane operator attempting to repair his machine was electrocuted by a live wire he touched during the height of the blizzard.

Heavy Snow Mantle
The storm, bringing bitter cold, hurled a paralyzing mantle of snow on Washington, Oregon and northern California and raged with undiminished fury into Idaho and Montana. The Idaho highway department did not even bother to send out snow plows as the storm pounded at the Idaho Falls Pocatello area. Strong winds caused severe snow drifting in Utah.

Battering winds raked the eastern half of the country spreading a trail of damage from Iowa to New York. Some buildings were unroofed, trees and utility poles were toppled and glass windows were caved in.

Floodwaters in some midwestern rivers edged higher but much colder weather moving in was expected to slow the runoff of ground water temporarily.

Western, northern and central New York was hardest hit by the destructive winds. Gusts topped hurricane velocity of 75 miles an hour and reached as high as 95 miles an hour in some places. Indianapolis clocked a 60 mile an hour sustained wind, with gusts up to 100 miles an hour.

Bus Blown Off Road
A Greyhound bus was blown off the road by an 80 mile an hour wind near the Canadian border village of Malone, N. Y. A passenger was injured. Broken power lines forced three Buffalo radio stations off the air. On Lake Erie, many small boats were wrecked.

Winds which sometimes reached hurricane force swept New York City, shattering plate glass windows and injuring several persons. Gusts up to 78 miles an hour were reported at La Guardia Field, but did not affect plane schedules. Idlewild, the International airport at Queens, had winds as strong as 60 miles an hour which churned

Two Extra Days for City Public Schools

The Sedalia public schools will hold sessions Saturday, February 11th and February 22nd, which is normally a holiday. George Washington's birthday. School is being held these two days to make up the two days missed by the schools last December 22 and 23 due the severe ice storm. This is in accordance with the state law that school must be held 180 days in Missouri.

Henry Salveter Addresses Underwriters

Fundamentals Of Wills Is Explained

Henry C. Salveter, local attorney, gave a worthwhile talk on the fundamentals of a will and the legal mechanics of preparing the instrument through the Probate Court, to members of the Sedalia Association of Life Underwriters at their regular monthly meeting held in the Ambassador Room of the Bothwell hotel, Saturday noon.

The speaker was originally scheduled to speak 20 minutes, but the interest of the underwriters was aroused to such an extent that they kept him on the floor for an hour and a half, for the purpose of answering questions, following his prepared address.

Mr. Salveter began by explaining that a will is "The legal expression of a man's wishes as to the disposition of his property after death."

Should Be Written
He explained that for all practical purposes, a will, within the meaning of the laws of Missouri must be in writing and sufficient definite for the court to determine the intention of the testator, and the objects of his bounty; and that it must be signed by the author, and two attesting witnesses, all in the presence of each other; and that the testator must be of legal age and of sound mind, and free of undue influence.

He explained the legal mechanics of how the will is admitted and accepted by the probate court; the period of time allowed for the contest of the will, and who may bring a contest suit; and further said that generally, if a will is properly witnessed and in legal form, that it can be set aside only on the grounds that the testator was not of sound mind at the time it was executed, or was under undue influence at the time of making the will.

No Need In Some Cases
Salveter said that when one did not desire to make any special bequests to his church or charitable organization, nor to any friend or relative, but merely wanted his property to descend to his blood relatives, according to the common law, that ordinarily such person had no need or occasion to write a will.

On the other hand, he pointed out, that if one wanted to make a special bequest to his church, or some charity and for good reasons did not want his property to go equally to his heirs at law; or had minor children and wanted someone to manage their share of his estate, under a trust; or if he wanted his estate to be administered by some trust company or a particular friend or member of his family because of their ability and his confidence in them, that then he should write a will.

Good Business
He further recommended that wills should be written when the testator is in a good state of mental and physical health. He said, that after all, the writing of a will was merely a good sound business transaction.

Preceding the speech, was a business session, presided over by the president, Abe Silverman. Hugo M. Spahn was elected as treasurer of the association, filling a recent vacancy, created by an underwriter moving from Sedalia. Marvin J. Elisea, membership director, gave a short talk on a membership drive. Edgar Brown was program chairman.

Miss Hazel Palmer will be the guest speaker at Rotary Club Monday noon at Bothwell hotel. Her subject will be: "Free Men and Free Enterprise."

Nolan Bricken will be the program chairman.

Year and Nine Days for State Assembly

Finally Adjourns With No Word On Special Session

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 14.—(P)—They made it. Missouri's in and out legislators finally quit for good today after trying vainly to finish since last summer.

They got the job done at last today, a year and nine days after the session started Jan. 5, 1949.

No business was transacted today, except the signing of routine bills passed earlier. Even at that both houses had to stop their clocks a few minutes before 2 p. m. to reach adjournment sine die—without a day being fixed for a further meeting.

The actual quitting time, with all the formalities over, was 2:45 p. m.

At the windup no one cared to speculate whether the Assembly would have to come back later in the year for a special session. Many chores were left undone but leaders of both parties said they had heard nothing lately about a special session.

Now that the legislature has adjourned for good, only Gov. Forrest Smith can call it back. He has given no recent indication that he planned to do so.

Wants Road Building
He has said, however, that he would ask the legislature to work out some new plan to finance rural road building if his four-cent gasoline tax law is defeated at the polls April 4. That is the date for a special referendum election on increasing the tax from two to four cents.

Currently that issue is tied up in litigation before the state supreme court.

When Lt. Gov. James T. Blair, Jr., dropped the final gavel today, only three senators were on hand to act as pallbearers for the dying session—Majority Floor Leader Edward V. Long of Bowling Green, C. R. Hawkins (R) of Brumley and Robert Pentland (D) of St. Louis.

About 20 stayed to hear Speaker Roy Hamlin of Marion county bang the final gavel in the House. And as usual in the House, lots of people wanted to get up to sing at least one chorus of the Swan song. But even the volunteers ran out of something to say and Hamlin recruited a few just by pointing at them and asking: "Now, don't you have something to say—a little campaign speech or something?"

His purpose was to keep the House going until everything was set for both houses to quit simultaneously. They opened the double doors so Hamlin could look the length of the chamber, through the door across the third floor lobby and into the Senate chamber.

There was no uproar that so often accompanied the finish in other years.

Those on hand just shook hands around, picked up their books and walked out.

Children Froze to Death in Storm

RITZVILLE, Wash., Jan. 14.—(P)—Two small children, who tried to walk home with their father after the family car stalled on a country road, froze to death in a field yesterday at the height of a howling blizzard.

Sheriff Frank Lucas said the victims were Frederick (Donnie) Stumpf, 6, and his sister, Eileen, 10. The father, Fred Stumpf, was taken to a Ritzville hospital in serious condition.

The boy's body was found early this morning but searchers attempting to locate Eileen had to turn back because of snow and intense cold. Crews went out again this morning. At noon they found her body about 300 yards away from where her brother had died.

Lucas said Stumpf was in Ritzville yesterday afternoon when schools were closed at noon. He picked up the children but apparently stayed in town for a time before heading home.

He started out about 3 p. m. the sheriff said. They drove 14 of the 15 miles home when the car stalled on the road in heavy drifts.

Lucas said Stumpf and the children got out and started across the field. The children were unable to make it. Stumpf kept going for help, shouting as he staggered along in the blinding storm.

His wife found him 200 yards from the house and led him inside.

They have no telephone and it was hours before they could get word out.

Lucas said Stumpf was badly frostbitten. Apparently he had walked back and forth over the fields in the raging blizzard in a fruitless effort to find his children.

Bride Notes in Bible Death Of Husband and 12 Others

FORT BENNING, Ga., Jan. 14.—(P)—A stunned, 16-year-old bride of 11 days noted in a travel-worn Bible today that her husband and 12 others died in the crash of an airplane glider.

Mrs. Betty Smith, wife of Private Gordon Smith, 23, of Columbus, Ga., noted simply that her husband and the others were "killed, Friday, Jan. 13, 1950."

The Bible was a gift from her husband which he obtained in Italy during the war while serving with the Navy.

Meanwhile, a seven-man board was convened at Lawson airbase by Major Richard O. Johnson, commanding officer, to determine the cause of the crash which also left four men critically injured.

None of the injured could testify. Each was unconscious in a hospital here.

A memorial service for the 13 dead was scheduled for the infantry training center at 4 p. m. Monday.

The service will be attended by all the pomp and circumstance with which the Army honors its dead.

Eleven of the victims were student paratroopers. They were scheduled to make their final jump today and then receive the coveted insignia of the men who drop to war on silk.

The others killed were a sergeant instructor and the pilot, 2nd Lt. Robert D. Henley of Columbia, Mo.

The glider crashed unaccountably yesterday while approaching Lawson Field to land.

Repair School Fire Damage

Classes As Usual At La Monte High After Holidays

Repairs on the LaMonte high school building damaged by fire Wednesday morning, December 28 when a blaze threatened destruction of the building are nearing completion.

Since the fire, which was in the Christmas vacation period, classes have been conducted as usual and the expansion program voted embracing twelve districts is likewise being carried through, eight of those districts already being operative under the plan.

Superintendent Alfred Brown states school activities are at their peak there in the mid-term period.

At a special meeting of the LaMonte school board appreciation was voiced for work of the LaMonte P. T. A., in cleaning up the building after the fire, to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Willis, residing near the school, who discovered the blaze, Mrs. Lyman Wharton, telephone exchange operator, who called 'phone patrons from all parts of the town spreading the alarm and to the volunteer fire fighters and others who by their fast and effective work saved the structure from destruction.

Bought 'Script' Of 'Tom Sawyer'
JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 14.—(P)—A special legislative committee reported today it has bought for $9,216 an original manuscript of Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" and a portrait of the famous Missouri author by Francis Davis Millet.

The relics, together with letters and galley proofs, will be enshrined in a niche of the capitol at the northwest corner of the third or legislative floor.

The seller is Frank Glenn, Kansas City rare book dealer. His fee will come from the contingent funds of the House and Senate. Former Sen. A. L. McCawley of Carthage, who handled the transaction, was allowed $500 for miscellaneous expenses.

In a letter to the committee, headed by Sen. William M. Quinn (D) of Maywood, Glenn said he would contribute $1,716 on his own to pay the cost of a brochure on the life and work of Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemens). Copies will be distributed to school children and other capitol visitors.

The "Tom Sawyer" manuscript, some of it in Clemens' handwriting, is the one taken to England in 1876 by Moncure D. Conway for the printing of a first edition there.

Women's Democratic Club To Meet

The Pettis County Women's Democratic club will hold its regular meeting, Tuesday night, at 8:00 o'clock, at the Maccabee Hall on East Fifth street, with the newly installed president, Mrs. J. C. Saunders, presiding. Matters of importance are to be discussed. The business meeting will be followed by a social hour.

If the entire world does not know there is a Sedalia, Missouri, it isn't the fault of the freak ice storm a few weeks ago.

From cities and small towns all over the United States have come letters to Sedalians enclosing a picture of Sedalia's ice storm which appeared on the front page of the sender's paper—no matter where they live.

Now to Mrs. H. F. Rapp, 1900 East Sixth street, comes a letter from her daughter, Mrs. G. F. Ely, who in Heidelberg, Germany, where her husband is stationed at the present time. And what was in the letter? You guessed it. A picture of Sedalia's ice storm which appeared on the front page of a Heidelberg paper.

To some of the former Sedalians even the ice storm looked good, with one woman writing: "When I saw that picture I got so homesick." And the Sedalians who received the letter having had plenty of trouble during the storm, for a time trying to keep warm and practically exhausting their large Christmas supply of candles, muttered in disgust: "Imagine anybody being homesick for an ice storm."

Well, we might have been isolated for a while from the rest of the world but we made up for it after all, kind of a bad and icy publicity, maybe, but we certainly made the front page everywhere.

Miners' Bloc For 'Five Days Or Nothing'

Balk at Lewis Suggestion be at Work Monday

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 14.—(P)—A big bloc of striking United Mine Workers today defied tradition and voted down John L. Lewis' suggestion that they go back to work Monday.

Exact figures are not available but at least nine locals representing more than 11,000 bituminous miners balked at their union leader's order to end a week-old strike.

"Five days or nothing," their spokesmen angrily declared.

Interpretations of the action differed. A few observers close to the coal situation regarded the move with some suspicion.

But to the majority it is simply a months old rebellion in their contract fight that finally burst through the traditional shell of miner silence.

However, for the operators and a coal-starved public there is little satisfaction in the miners' move.

The nation's soft coal supply is dangerously low because of a series of strikes last year and the three-day-work week instituted by Lewis in December.

Reports from throughout the country indicate that only the protracted and unseasonable mild weather has prevented hardship in many areas.

Expect Decision Today
Those who voted to continue the strike are employees of mines in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

A decision generally affecting all diggers in northern West Virginia is expected tomorrow when 300 local UMW officials meet at Grant town.

Meetings of other locals in western Pennsylvania also are scheduled for the week-end.

The man who would most keenly feel the rebellion today grieved over a more personal loss. Lewis was in Springfield, Ill., attending the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Anna Louisa Lewis.

Many of his lieutenants and district leaders were with him.

The diggers openly expressed their sentiments at the meetings today.

"Five days or nothing," one said. "We're tired of going in, then going out, then going in."

Another said the miners' "are pretty damn sore about the delay" in forging a new contract. Asked at whom they are "sore," he replied:

"I won't say it's Lewis or the operators in particular. We just want to get the contract business settled for once and for all."

College Girl Is Found Slain

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 14.—(P)—Pretty Marian Louise Baker, 21-year-old college stenographer missing since Tuesday was found slain today, Dr. C. P. Stehr, Lancaster county coroner reported.

The body of Miss Baker was found under a summer cottage on the farm of attorney Martin H. Harnish of Lancaster. Her head was bashed in and her hair a mass of blood, Corp. James Cain of the state police reported.

Miss Baker, whose engagement was announced Christmas eve, was a stenographer at Franklin and Marshall college. She was last seen on a downtown Lancaster street Tuesday by a newsman.

Mrs. Frances Harnish, wife of the attorney, found the body today as she went out to place bait and food for animals around the cottage.

The white frame structure is located about one half mile back of route 22, a main highway, in a heavily wooded area which Mrs. Harnish said is "a petter's hang-out."

Dr. Stehr ordered the body removed to Lancaster general hospital for an autopsy. He said he could not determine whether the girl had been raped.

Corp. Cain said she apparently was slain near the cottage and carried under the building on the corrugated roofing.

Police, relatives and Marian's fiancé, Edgar B. Rankin, 22, of nearby Conestoga, are at the hospital.

New Property at 50 Percent Actual Cost

In the Sedalia Democrat, Friday evening, a story telling of the tax rate in Sedalia and Pettis county, and on how property is assessed the percentage on new real estate was omitted. It was explained that County Assessor Lawson Clingan, through whose office property is assessed, states values of property on his books when he took office was accepted at the prior assessor's valuation. He also explained new property is assessed at about 50-percent of the actual or original costs.

Payroll Near To 22 Billion A Year Clip

Surpassed Only In Wartime Period From 1943 to 1945

By Charles Molony

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(P)—Governmental payroll costs are approaching a $22,000,000,000-a-year clip, an Associated Press survey showed today.

These pay and allowance outlays by federal, state and local governments account for nearly $1 of each $6 paid out for wages and salaries in this country. They were surpassed only during the 1943-1945 wartime period.

By official records, 7,685,000 persons—about one out of every eight workers in the country—are drawing government pay.

The total includes members of the armed forces and school system employees. The federal payroll was running somewhat higher than that for state and local governments, but the latter employed more people.

Commerce department data showed government payrolls hit a peacetime peak of $21,900,000,000 a year in November, and it appeared the climb was continuing.

Officials helping to analyze President Truman's budget for fiscal 1951—the 12-months beginning next July—said total federal payroll outlays in that period will approximate $11,000,000,000.

That means a $600,000,000 increase over this year, split about equally between 1,500,000 members of the armed forces and approximately 2,000,000 civilian workers.

Armed forces payrolls are budgeted to total $4,300,000,000 and civilian payrolls are estimated at about $6,700,000,000 in fiscal 1951. Together they will make up nearly one-fourth of all government cash outlays.

The $11,000,000,000 federal total averages out to $244 for each of the 45,000,000 federal income taxpayers.

The increase over the current fiscal year is due to boosts in military and civilian pay voted by Congress, but not put into effect until fiscal 1950 was well under way.

Only Dead, 54, In Sunk 'Sub'

CHATHAM, Eng., Jan. 14.—(P)—Frogmen confirmed today that only the dead remain in the smashed and silent hull of the submarine Truculent, but one seaman officially listed as a victim turned up alive.

He had been, given leave because of illness in his family.

The admiralty, revising its figures again, announced that only 64 men were lost with the submarine, which sank in the silty Thames estuary Thursday night after a collision with the Swedish tanker Divina.

The revision was made in a final statement listing the 10 known dead and the 54 missing officers, seamen and dockyard workers. Fifteen were rescued.

Out in the Thames channel, eight miles from the nearest shore frogmen—expert swimmers with breathing apparatus—managed to wiggle into the compartment which had been ripped open.

They brought back reports giving no hope that any of the 54 missing men are alive.

No bodies lay in the compartment they penetrated, but the frogmen could not move much because of tangled gear and they did not try to open bulkhead doors.

Cross Bill On Hospital

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Jan. 14.—(P)—A former patient in the Missouri Methodist hospital at St. Joseph today asked $2,000 in damages, charging she had been detained by force for six hours after an operation last spring.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Nellie McCoy, and her husband, Jack McCoy, of Caldwell county, previously had been named defendants in a suit brought by the hospital to collect $257.70. The case was brought here on a change of venue from Caldwell county.

The McCays, in their cross bill, alleged the hospital "maliciously and with intent to injure the defendant Nellie McCoy and to compel payment of the alleged account did by force detain her in the hospital for six hours."

Invasion Is Denounced In Strong Terms by U. S. Lawmakers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(P)—In contempt of American protests, the Chinese Communists today swarmed in and took over the United States consulate office in Peiping.

The State Department immediately ordered all its official personnel out of Red China. It reportedly acted with President Truman's direct approval.

It blasted at the Communists' latest anti-American move as "a flagrant violation of our treaty rights and of the most elementary standards of international usage and conduct."

Angry U. S. lawmakers denounced the invasion and seizure of American property in the strongest terms. Republicans redoubled their criticism of the administration's handling of Far Eastern affairs. Several said this latest insult should rule out all possibility of U. S. recognition of the Chinese Communist regime.

Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn) declared bluntly: "We should classify the Chinese Communists as outlaws and cease to do business with them."

Knowland Indignant
Senator Knowland (R-Calif.), riled for months by the state department's handling of the tense Far Eastern situation, demanded the resignation of all administration officials responsible for American policy there.

He said he was thinking principally of W. Walton Butterworth, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs. Knowland added, however:

"If the policies of the Far Eastern division are approved by Secretary of State Acheson, the shoe fits him, too."

The state department broke the news of the Peiping consulate seizure in a lengthy announcement, documented with copies of protest filed in advance with Chinese Communist generals.

Orders for the seizure of some French and Dutch property in Peiping also were reported to have been issued by the Communists. Officials here did not know whether those orders had been carried out.

The United States is recalling 135 American foreign service officers and their dependents. Of those, 36 are in Peiping, where Consul General O. Edmund Clubb has been in charge.

The state department said the seizure of the consulate office in that Chinese Communist capital was carried out quietly and without violence. None of the Americans had been arrested; all were said to be safe.

The state department said arrangements for the actual withdrawal of American officials and their families will be made as quickly as possible.

Facilities To Leave
"Any facilities for evacuation from China which are arranged for our official personnel will be made available for all American citizens who desire to depart," the

Slash for the National Guard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(P)—Reduction of Army National Guard strength in all states and territories except Alaska was announced today by the defense department. The cut involves 6,515 members of the guard.

Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, chief of the National Guard Bureau, said the states will have until Feb. 20 to get down to a 350,000 man ceiling, set by the current (fiscal 1950) budget. The Guard totaled 356,515 officers and men on Dec. 20, 1949.

Alaska is exempted from the cut-back order because the territory is about 600 men under its tentatively authorized strength of 923.

The present and adjusted strength of state and territorial guard units include:

Some Products To Give Away

Could be Turned Over to Some Relief Agencies

By Ovid A. Martin
WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(P)—

The Agriculture Department is setting up machinery for giving away government stocks or surplus perishable farm products.

The products can be given to federal agencies, public and private relief agencies in this country and foreign relief organizations.

Handling the give-away job will be the department's far-flung production and marketing administration under the terms of the 1949 farm act which went into effect January 1. That act authorizes donation of government surpluses when they can no longer be held without going to waste.

So far, no specific commodity has been put on the give-away list. The department has more than $3,500,000,000 invested in surplus under farm price support programs.

The bulk of these surplus stocks are storable commodities such as cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco, soybeans, dried beans, and other grain which can be held for long periods. It is unlikely that any of them will be put on the donation list.

What They Include
Commodities held by the department which might fall eventually in the give-away class include: Potatoes, dried eggs, dried milk and butter.

The law sets up a priority list in making donations. Top priority is given the munitions board and other government agencies for exchange for materials not produced in this country.

Next in line are the federal-state school lunch program, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Federal, state and local public welfare and its territories, in that order.

Last on the list are private welfare agencies assisting the needy abroad.

Agencies receiving surpluses must make sure that the products will not get back into regular channels of trade to compete with price support operations. Also the agencies must not reduce their expenditures for food as a result of the donations.

Gifts for foreign relief will be limited to United States voluntary non-profit relief agencies directed by active and responsible persons receiving them.

Minister is Given Flogging

ATLANTA, Jan. 14—(P)—A battered and bloodstained little minister of Italian birth Friday reported he had been seized and beaten by masked men.

The short, round preacher, clutching a briefcase inscribed "Jesus Saves," identified himself as Michael Picardi, pastor of the Temple Emanuel church in Columbus, Ohio.

Picardi said six or seven men, wearing handkerchiefs for masks and armed with shotguns, dragged him from the pulpit of a small Negro church at Cairo, Ga., last night.

These men, he continued, loaded him into an automobile, drove away from the church and ordered him to disrobe.

Then, said Picardi, they flogged him with a metal tipped belt and struck him with a gun butt across the head. Nearly all the blows rained upon the 59-year-old man drew blood.

His abductors, Picardi related, accused him of staying with Negroes and asked if he were a white man and, if so, why didn't he preach in white men's churches.

"They say," Picardi observed mildly, "Why don't you preach in a white man's church? The gospel say you gotta preach to all people. I don't know anything about the south, but the federal law says everyone is free to believe as he pleases."

FBI agent John C. Bills in Atlanta said he had a report of the incident and that the minister's account is being referred to the justice department.

At Cairo, Sheriff C. H. Strickland said he had received no report of the flogging.

The sheriff added that he had talked with Picardi Wednesday when he received a report that the minister was living with Negroes. "I told him," said Strickland, "That it wasn't customary for white people to stay with Negroes."

That, Strickland reported, was the last he saw of the victim. Picardi denied that he had been staying with Negroes. He said he had been sleeping in his car.

NEW YORK—(P)—There is a new theory that men ought to spend less time chasing skirts—and more time wearing them.

Yep, that's right, fellows—s-k-i-r-t-s for men instead of t-r-o-u-s-e-r-s.

Naturally this idea didn't come from a man. It was cooked up by a group of high-priced lady designers. They were asked by the Costume Institute of the Metropolitan Museum of Art to figure out what the man of the future ought to wear.

The ladies leaped at the suggestion. As every woman knows, the biggest thing wrong with men is the way they dress—as much alike as polka dots.

Or, as designer Lily Dache crisply put it: "It's a good thing that they put tags on men at conventions to tell them apart."

Won't Need Tags
Well, if men start wearing what these fashion experts dreamed up for them they won't need to wear tags. They will probably be caught in nets and pinned on boards like butterflies.

Among other items, the girls suggested: Jackets of pale yellow doeskin with big, big buttons. A wrap-around skirt of plaid silk.

A collarless suit with a sewn-in shirt dickey. Berets with colorful sunburst patterns. Shoulder strap leather handbags.

Last to Understand
I would be the last to underestimate the power of women. But if the man of the future is ever induced to go about in this he-moth attire, I have no hesitancy in predicting what the woman of the future will look like. She will wear a pin-stripe suit—trousers and a double-breasted jacket—and a derby hat. She will also chew tobacco and spit through her teeth, and only her mother will love her. However, I don't believe Lily Dache, Hattie Carnegie, and the other designing ladies will succeed in inflicting leather handbags or plaid skirts on men. And certainly I will refuse to wear a beret unless it has a propeller on it, such as those so popular now with the small fry.

The plain truth is that the average man no longer thinks it is just dandy to dress like a dandy. He doesn't want to return to the silk-and-cotton period of his past, nor does he pine for a bunch of lace at his throat.

Completed Evolution
Man has come from armor to elegance to utility in his attire. He has completed his evolution. Women on the other hand, are still mixed up in the matter of what to wear. They are imprisoned by armor—the girdle. Furs and high heel shoes lend them elegance. There is also something about their clothing that observes the principle of practicality, but I have forgotten just what this is. The utility of women's clothing is more impressive than its utility.

Our economy is still based on one car to a family—and one peacock. Mamma is the peacock, the only one we can afford. Man has had his turn at being the peacock, and found it wasn't worth the fine feathers.

The soundest hint of what the future man will wear has been given by Winston Churchill. He likes to lounge in a pair of coveralls. Zip—you're in! Unzip—you're out!

Papa is much more likely to go for that than wear the skirts in his family.

Jets of air, directed across the making process, which gives a surface of white-hot liquid pig product of open hearth quality. Foxes eat few birds. It's not iron, are a feature of a new steel-low in phosphorous and nitrogen. I can't catch many.

Mackenzie's Column

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP Foreign News Analyst

An atmosphere of nostalgic drama surrounds the marshalling of England's political forces for next month's general election.

That election will render an epochal decision—a point which this column made yesterday and now repeats for emphasis. It will determine whether the country shall give approval to its five-year experiment in socialism and continue along the road into new fields, or whether it shall return to the capitalistic system under which it reaches its peak of imperial greatness.

Britain is at the parting of the ways.

As a leading actor in this great drama Winston Churchill, his head unbowed by his 75 years, is rushing back from his winter vacation in the sunny island of Madeira to guide his conservative forces in what may be his last major political battle. Here is one of the greatest figures in the long history of England—statesman, literary giant, orator—the man who led the nation through "blood, toil, sweat and tears"—to victory in the world conflict—an old war horse charging headlong into the fray once more.

Role for Churchill
It is fitting that Churchill play this role. Here we have the bluest blood of the nobility—a die-hard Tory who symbolizes England at the peak of her imperial greatness.

To his more elderly followers in particular, Churchill is a truly heroic figure who conjures up visions of the "good old days": The days when peace and contentment hovered over England's hedged, enclosed, green fields and sweet, doll-house flower gardens—the days when imperial power was at its peak.

Churchill has charged the Socialists with throwing away that empire, and he would halt their nationalization program which to him is hateful and harmful. He would return to the days of private initiative.

A New Line
That's not a new line for Churchill. I remember seeing him in action against Socialist ideas as far back as 1924 when the late Ramsay MacDonald headed Britain's first labor government. They mostly called them "Laborites" in those days rather than "Socialists."

Churchill was more or less a lone wolf in the Tory ranks, and he directed his paralyzing oratory over a wide field. One of his pet opponents was MacDonald, and I saw Churchill tongue-lash the prime minister until the latter literally slumped onto the middle of his spine in his seat, his face as red as a beet. In those days opponents didn't tangle with Winston in debate if they could help it.

So Churchill would reestablish the theories of private enterprise. He has promised to repeal the Socialist steel nationalization bill, and not to permit state ownership to go any further.

Whether Churchill would be able to achieve all his heart's desire if elected is perhaps open to doubt. One of the immutable laws of life is that you can't turn back the clock. And time has made in England's way of life many changes which can't be turned back.

Cannot Turn Back
Neither Churchill nor anyone else could restore the empire to its greatness of the days when India was the brightest jewel in the imperial crown. And nothing can restore to England the days when she waxed rich by the simple expedient of importing raw materials from foreign countries, manufacturing those materials, and re-exporting the finished products at a neat profit. Industrialization of those foreign countries has changed all that.

If Churchill should be returned to power he would have to face these facts. The "good old days" are gone forever. We are in a new era, and a new generation is calling for changes. However, this doesn't mean that Britain can't be pulled out of her present economic crisis and restored to prosperity. The economic experts say she can if the proper methods are followed.

The task of the British voter is to decide which party has the proper methods.

Heir to Fortune In Death Plunge

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14—(AP)—Thomas Lee, 45-year-old heir to the $9,000,000 Don Lee automobile and radio fortune, plunged to his death Friday from the 12th floor of a Wilshire Boulevard office building.

His body landed on a third-floor extension of the Wilshire building after striking a fire escape. Detective Bill Barkley said Lee either jumped or fell from the fire escape at the 12th floor level. A lighted cigarette was found on a ledge there. A package of the same brand was in Lee's pocket, Barkley said.

Lee, who had been staying at the La Quinta hotel in Palm Springs had been dropped off at the building at 4:19 p. m. (PST) to keep an appointment with a dentist, Dr. E. J. Phee, the detective said he was told by Lee's nurse, Jeanne Shiffler.

Lee, a bachelor, had been suffering from mental disorders for several years and guardians were appointed for his estate in 1948. He had been under frequent treatment in sanitariums.

Miss Shiffler said she and Lee flew in to Los Angeles with private pilot Bob Hanley earlier and then drove Lee to his appointment in the auto heir's expensive french-made car, officers reported.

Dets. Barkley and Paul Labbe reported that Lee apparently never went to the dentist's office on the 11th floor. They said the door to the fire escape was closed on the 11th floor, but he had gone out from either the ninth or 10th floor, where the doors were open, and then walked up to the 12th floor level.

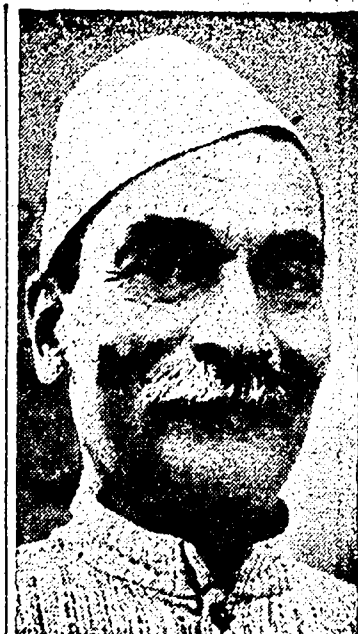

His body was discovered about

Ask Farmers to Hold Back Hogs

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—(AP)—The government Friday asked farmers to keep some of their hogs off the markets in order to bolster sagging prices.

The department of agriculture asked the farmers to fatten some of their hogs to heavier weights.

The request came on the heels of the largest hog receipts in six years on the 12 major public markets of the country.

Receipts ran to an estimated total of 520,000 hogs in the Monday-Friday period this week. This was the largest number for the season and since January, 1944 when farmers were marketing an all-time record pig crop.

As a result, the average price for barrows and gilts at Chicago fell below $15.20, a hundred pounds. The government's support guide for seven midwest markets is $15.25 this week, it was noted, and prices at Chicago generally are higher than the seven-market average.

Assistance Is Being Offered To the Farmers

Farm Worksheet Must Be Signed By February 1

Assistance under the 1950 Agricultural Conservation Program is now being offered to farmers of Pettis county and to be eligible for this assistance the Farm Worksheet must be signed by February 1 by someone interested in the operation of the farm.

Practices on which assistance is offered include sod waterways, standard terraces, diversion terraces, ponds for livestock water, farm drainage ditches, erosion control structures, establishing or improving permanent pasture land, green manure crop of second year sweet clover, seeding alfalfa, red clover, sweet clover, alsike clover and ladino clover, applying limestone, fertilizers and rock phosphate, planting multiflora rose and clearing land for permanent pasture.

This assistance, averaging about 50 per cent of the total cost of practices represents the interest the people of this country have in protecting and building up the soil and water resources upon which all people depend, said Jas. A. Harvey, chairman of the Pettis county PMA committee.

Should Take Inventory
Farmers in Pettis county are being asked to take an inventory of the conservation needs of their farms. What is needed to check erosion and keep the top-soil from washing away? What is needed to building up reserves of organic matter and humus in the soil so that the land will soak up more water and not wash away so easily? What is needed to bring about a better balance in the use of the land so that production may continue indefinitely?

The committee suggests that farmers also consider the priority of conservation practices, with those most urgently needed at the head of the list. With the help of the local PMA committeemen, these needs should be checked with the practices which have been approved for Pettis county and those practices selected which will do the most to meet the most urgent needs. In this way a conservation program can be worked out for the individual farm which will result in the greatest benefit.

These factors should be taken into consideration when signing the 1950 Farm Worksheet before February 1, 1950.

Needs Good Sod
As land is taken out of the allotment crops of wheat and corn here in Pettis county, more and more of it must be protected with a good sod. This means greater emphasis on returning more of our land to grass and legume and the seeding and improving of pasture land, is the report made by the Pettis county PMA committee.

Seeding the land to grass and legumes, however, is not always enough. Where the soil is highly acid, there will be need for lime. Where there are mineral deficiencies, corrective steps will need to be taken by the application of the required minerals.

The establishing of a good stand of grass or legume is one of the best methods of protection against erosion, said the committee, but to get a good sod, the growing conditions of the soil for the grass and legumes must be favorable.

Offers Encouragement
To help farmers provide this tural Conservation Program favorable condition, the Agricultural and assists farmers in carrying out a number of conservation practices. Practices approved in Pettis county under the 1950 Agricultural Conservation Program that will help provide this favorable growing condition include the application of lime-

Chinese Reds In Seizure of the U. S. Consulate

state department announcement said.

It was not believed here, however, that many of the 3,000 businessmen, missionaries and other Americans still in China would heed the implied advice to get out.

The actual invasion and seizure of the premises of the American consulate general was effected by Chinese Communist police and four civilian officials, the state department said, at 9:30 a. m. today (China time) or 8:50 p. m. yesterday, EST.

The American staff in Peiping has occupied four compounds, which are walled enclosures of residences and offices. The most important was the one in which the consulate offices operated. That was one the Reds took over Americans in that compound moved without molestation into the adjoining compound which for the moment at least was not disturbed.

Some of the official records in the consulate offices have been destroyed, Butterworth said, and some have been removed. This was also true of the materials used in sending code messages to the government in Washington; some were destroyed some were removed.

So far communication between Peiping and Washington have not been disrupted and officials are hopeful they will not be. They are also hopeful that they will encounter no extraordinary difficulties in arranging to get the state department people out of China. The arrangement may take a month or more to complete.

Thirty are More Die In Storms

up thick clouds of dust and sand. In a special bulletin for areas of New York state, the weather bureau warned residents it would be dangerous to be outdoors. With most highways blocked by snow in the Pacific northwest, motorists were advised not to travel except in emergencies. Highway patrols in Utah cautioned motorists to stay home until storms pass in that area.

Wind reached a sustained velocity of 72 miles an hour in Rochester, N. Y., holding for five minutes. The blow was the strongest in the city's history, with gusts up to 95 mph. Gusts reached 85 to 90 mph in Niagara Falls and over 80 in Buffalo.

At the Genesee airport, 30 miles south of Rochester, six small airplanes were smashed in a heap. The roof was ripped from a machinery manufacturing company plant in Auburn. Damage from fallen trees and broken power lines was widespread in the state.

Five persons perished in a head on bus crash in a blinding snowstorm near Gaylor, Mich., and five others were killed in a train-truck crash in a heavy rain storm at Terra Haute, Ind.

A man and his three children drowned apparently when their boat overturned in the backwaters of the flooded Wabash river near Oaktown, Ind.

Storms caused three deaths in Canada. In British Columbia, an 86 year old woman died from hunger and exposure and an infant died at birth after its mother was carried through a blizzard to a hospital. A man was crushed to death by a 400-pound stone blown from the 11th story of a building in Montreal, where gusts reached 60 miles an hour.

Flood swollen rivers in the mid-west brought new damage. Thirteen families were evacuated at Nashville, Tenn., on the Cumberland river. The Red Cross removed 50 families from the Indiana "pocket" area between the converging Ohio and Wabash rivers.

Water was chest deep in the main street of Rosiclare, Ill., on the Ohio river. Some 250 persons have been evacuated and 40 business houses have been abandoned. Local telephone service was shut off "for the duration." The town of nearly 2,000 has no flood wall and a further rise of two feet of water is expected.

Pinwheel Light To Scare Moose

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 14.—(P)—Helpful hints for Alaskan household, No. 21,646: To chase a moose use one (1) Fourth of July pinwheel.

The Alaska railroad gave out the recipe today. For years its trains have been knocking moose into moose heaven. The big animals with the stubbornly hooked noses just won't get out of the way for a mere steam engine.

They travel the cleared roadbed in preference to breaking their own trails in the snow.

Latest experiment in the long search for an effective moose mover was a flashing pinwheel that whirled like a pinwheel. The moose, reported the railroad, ran like a little boy who had just touched a match to the giant firecracker.

Last year the trains killed 150 moose accidentally along the route.

Dream Bubble of Couple Burst

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(P)—The dream-like existence of a young Missouri couple burst like a bubble here today.

Living as Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cunningham, twins born to them one before and the other just after midnight—New Year's eve, brought the family a wealth of publicity and three radio contracts.

Tomorrow they were to go on a national hookup and a Missouri radio station, KTTS at Springfield, was sending their three-year old son here for the occasion.

But just when the dream bubble was flying at its highest, someone in Branch, Mo., saw the picture of the twins' father and recognized Cunningham as Ronald Yinger, on parole from the Missouri state penitentiary.

He had served 11 months of a passing bad checks.

Yinger, alias Cunningham, was arraigned in felony court today in Brooklyn before Magistrate Eugene Cando.

Yinger is being held in jail pending disposition of the case.

Yinger, alias Cunningham, was charged with violating parole. He left the state of Missouri last July and came here, leaving his young son, Ronald, Jr., with the maternal grandmother, Dorah Daugherty.

The defendant burst into tears when Magistrate Cando called him a "fugitive from justice."

The mother, who was in court with the twins, burst into tears, too.

District Attorney Miles F. McDonald of Kings county took one look at the scene and said he would communicate with Missouri authorities and see what he could do.

At Jefferson City, Mo., Donald Bunker, secretary of the Missouri probation and parole board said he had been working on the case for three days.

Bunker said he had been told that New York authorities planned to contact him concerning the case, but that as yet he had received no information from New York officials.

Capt. Thomas E. Whitecotton of the Missouri highway patrol said the grandmother, Mrs. Daugherty, had young Ronnie at her home in Branch, Mo.

Mrs. Daugherty refused to let the boy make the plane trip to New York, Whitecotton reported.

"Music, Art and Poetry" Was Title of Music Club Program

"Music, Art, and Poetry" was the title of a skilfully designed and correlated program presented Wednesday afternoon to the Helen G. Steele Music club. Mrs. Lee Montgomery acting as narrator for the program, explained that the same thought and emotion may seek expression through the medium of the genius of its particular creator in poetry, music and painting, hence the relation of these arts. In the realm of nature Mrs. Montgomery chose the English artist, Constable, as her favorite and an outstanding example of the school of nature painters. Two nature poems by Edna St. Vincent Millay, "The Buck in the Snow" and "God's World" were read by Mrs. William Ward. Mrs. William Hurt played as a piano solo "Moonlight Scene" from "A Kiss in Xanadu" (Deems Taylor). "The Rivals" (Taylor) was sung by Mrs. Homer Keith accompanied by Miss Lillian Fox. "May Day Carol" (Taylor) was sung by a double quartette composed of Mesdames Al Miles, James Jolly, George Lovercamp, Ben Robinson, C. W. Faulkner, Roy Kirchofer, William Cooper and Robert Long with Mrs. Paul Berthouex accompanying.

The paintings of Rossetti were used to illustrate the romantic mood. He was a founder of the Pre-Raphaelite movement and the use of glowing colors and exquisite flesh tones characterize his work. Expressing the romantic in poetry were the Elizabeth Barrett Browning poems "First Time He Kissed Me" and "Do I Love Thee?" read by Mrs. Ward. A piano solo, "Romanza" from Fourth Symphony (Schumann) was played by Mrs. Henry Salveter. "I'll Not Complain" (Schumann) was sung by Mrs. Al Miles accompanied by Mrs. Fred Ross.

Painter of the Virgin. The 15th century Italian Renaissance painter, Sandro Botticelli, was used to illustrate the fanciful beauty in the Virgin. "The Lie" and "Pretty Words" by Elinor Wylie were read by Mrs. Ward to illustrate the fanciful in poetry. "Maid of the Ganges" (Mendelssohn) was a vocal duet by Mesdames Jolly and Lovercamp, accompanied by Mrs. Ralph D. Salmon. A violin solo "Capriccio" (Mendelssohn) was played by Miss Challis Johnson, accompanied by Mrs. William Hurt.

As a dramatic painter, Mrs. Montgomery chose Rubens whom she described as the most magnificent of all painters and the most misunderstood. He is chiefly remembered for his nudes and the 18 panels in the Louvre. The superb dramatic art of Shakespeare was ably illustrated in the reading of an excerpt from "Romeo and Juliet" by Mrs. Ward. "The Magic Fire Scene" from "Die Walkure" (Wagner) was played as a piano solo by Mrs. Salmon.

and the double quartette closed the program with "Whirl and Twirl" from "The Flying Dutchman" (Wagner). Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Salmon and Mrs. Ward were co-chairmen for this program.

Mrs. Yancey Presided. Mrs. E. F. Yancey, life president, presided and called attention to the Sigmund Spaeth broadcast and the Opera broadcast on Saturdays and reminded the members that the club receives credits on its Federation rating for listening to these programs. The secretary, Mrs. G. H. Abney read a Christmas greeting from Mrs. Edward MacDowell, widow of the composer. Mrs. Yancey announced that a choral group from the club had won a $25 government bond as first prize in a recent radio Christmas Carol contest. Mrs. Homer Keith gave the history of the Federation hymn of the month, "Brightest and Best of the Sons of the Morning." The members joined in singing this beautiful Epiphany hymn. Mrs. Fred Ross announced the appearance of John Raimo, pianist of Kansas City, before the club on January 25.

There will be a Music club chorus rehearsal at the club house Wednesday, at 2 p.m.

Man Who Spent Months in Russia Sorosis Speaker

"Footnotes from Russia" will be the subject of an address to be given at Sorosis Monday afternoon by David M. White, of Kansas City, former technical sergeant, who spent 15 months in Moscow in 1944-45 on a secret mission with the military intelligence.

While in Moscow he wrote something akin to a diary, almost daily accounts to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd M. White, detailing his observations and impressions. Excerpts from his letters, which gave an informal picture of Russians and Russian life, appeared in a series of articles in the Kansas City Star in 1946.

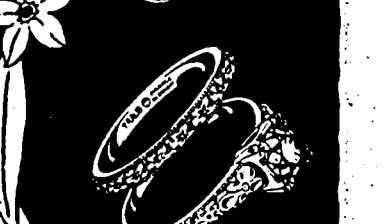

Before going to Moscow he was at the Roosevelt-Churchill conference in Quebec. After he left Russia he served on a brief mission to Germany, assembling data on war criminals.

He was graduated from the University of Illinois, where he majored in languages and industrial designing and is now working as an interior decorator in Kansas City. He is an accomplished musician as well as a professional speaker and following his talk will play a group of Russian airs which he will interpret in song.

Mrs. C. F. Scotten, civics chairman, will introduce the speaker. A luncheon will be held at 1:00 o'clock preceding the meeting.

Last week, I mentioned having faith in your sales girl. I want to add a bit more to this thought. You believe in your beautician and your doctor, therefore you should have a sales lady in some store with whom you have the same confidence. It pays dividends along the way. Even if you buy something in another store, feel free to go in to her and get her ideas, if you feel skeptical about your selections. I have this happen frequently and it gives both of you a new trust. With Spring just around the corner, every purchase you make is important. If you are wondering about colors, styles or fabrics, come in and I'll be happy to discuss any of these with you. We have new fabrics and colors to show you and they are most exciting.

"A School Teacher Looks Around Her" Theme of Talk

One of the most interesting talks at any meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club, was that given recently by a Sedalian, Miss Hazel Gray, 417 East Seventh street, member of Smith-Cotton high school faculty. Miss Gray said in part:

"The Business and Professional Women's club has for years given proof of its interest in scholarship by offering a scholarship to a girl graduating from the local high school. The scholarship committees in past years have performed wisely for the award has always gone to a worthy and outstanding girl. The faculty of Smith-Cotton has always been grateful for the interest that has made possible the continued schooling of one of our graduates. "Awards and honors are not the goals of education. They are merely a means of bestowing that encouragement, that pat on the back, which all human beings must have in order to continue striving. It was with that in mind that the faculty of Smith-Cotton obtained a charter for a chapter of National Honor Society from the National Council of Secondary School Principals. The organization works to develop the qualities of leadership in those students who have given evidence of perseverance and working capacity that is above average.

Discussed Goals

"In discussing the goals in modern education there are specific elements that must be considered. We are living in an era when people are faced with problems for which there is no known answer, we are surrounded by technology we do not understand, and we are beset on all sides by controversial issues. The possibility of being all-wise has vanished from the modern world. There is so much to know that the most scholarly people of our time are mines of information in only a narrow field. The marks of the educated person today are balanced judgment, tolerance, and the ability to think critically in general and authoritatively in a narrow field. During this century we have perhaps over emphasized factual learning and in our desire for scientific achievements of science have not made it easier to be spiritually serene and happy. The scientists themselves are telling us that we cannot substitute technology and science for justice and mercy. Henry Steele Commager's statement that the first half of the 20th century may go down as the age of unreason is based on the idea that by reducing the importance of religion in our lives we have weakened the sanctions of moral conduct.

"Modern man is to a considerable extent all dressed up in inventions that are not his own. Hendrick Van Loon said, 'A Zulu in a cocked hat is still a Zulu.' How much of modern civilization could you restore if you were left the one surviving adult in the world? Modern living forces each one of us to be dependent on others. We are our brother's keeper. His health, his welfare, his attitudes, his opinions, his skills are important because we are dependent on them.

Interested in Bettering Themselves

"The newspapers and magazines have been full recently of evaluations of the first half of the 20th century. In those lists of the ten great people of this century it is interesting to see the evaluation placed on leadership in social concepts and social responsibility. In addition to recognizing the marvelous development in technology we can see all around us evidence of the growing conception of the need for extending and modifying our ethical system. People are interested in better educational opportunities for all, and in economic and social security for all. They are willing to seek ways and means of securing them.

"The whole burden of education does not rest on schools and teachers. Education is a life long process. Human beings are by nature creative but our civilization gives us little opportunity for satisfying our creative urges. Why bother with making when the machine turns out a product more to your liking? Even our amusements are mass made and few jobs give us creative satisfactions. Somewhere we must find them. Many individuals and organizations are turning to the assumption of social responsibility for these satisfactions. When you establish a scholarship for a high school girl you are getting creative satisfaction and when you help in civic projects you are helping build a better community. In helping others modern man finds relief for urges that otherwise develop into frustrations and tensions.

Guard Against Pessimism

"We must guard against pessimism and discouragement. The children now love luxury. They have bad manners, contempt for authority. They contradict their parents, tyrannize over their teachers. You've heard the same idea expressed dozens of times the past year but the quotation is from Socrates who lived over 2000 years ago. This business of living with the younger generation has been the same for a long time. No one knows better than the school teacher the trials of enduring the cocksureness of the very young, but they do grow up and the endurance seems worthwhile.

No Need to Despair

"There is no reason for despair in facing the problems of 1950. While democracy is strong in the Western world and while we have freedom to seek solutions for ourselves, mankind can face the future with high hopes. The answers that we do not know are perhaps not as far off as they sometimes seem. The vigor of America is great, her wealth is unsurpassed and the strides we have made in cooperative endeavors, in the development of tolerance, in concern with human welfare are most encouraging. As a school teacher I am most pleased with the great progress, planned and unplanned, made in creating educational opportunities. Educational opportunities reflect plans of parents and communities, and the desire of interested people to make schooling available to all regardless of means. The number of high school graduates has been increasing since 1890 thirteen times as fast as the population and the number of college graduates six times as fast. We are making progress. The part played by organizations like yours has been important. It is my hope that for years to come you will be concerned enough to sponsor a scholarship for a high school girl and that you will always stand as you have in the past as champions of those causes which promote the welfare of the community and the maintenance of the standards of ethics and morality that have come to be regarded as typically American."

Music Modes

The most obvious song to the majority of people is one with words. One that leaves no doubt whatever as to the meaning to the composition. The term "absolute" has been applied to this form of music by many leading music analysts. Another form of musical composition and one that is often heard at the Sedalia Symphony orchestra concerts is one labeled "program music."

The latter form, technically, is limited to instrumental compositions, without words, for which the composer supplies a descriptive title or explanatory notes. Such music may either tell a direct story or be creating a tonal picture or scene. Some passages in this art-form may contain imitating sounds such as thunder, wind or even an intangible calmness.

A Good Reason

This form of musical composition is easy to understand and there is a good reason. In advance of the performance the people are told what the music is to represent. For the most part when people are told that the next composition will do this or that, they will accept it in good faith.

Many of the masters relaxed from the trying task of worrying about excellent librettos, scenery and costumes to this type of musical expression. In the classical field Daquin's "La Coucou"—a theme using a pattern of a cuckoo's song—and Haydn's "La Poule" symphony about chickens are tasty examples.

In the process of telling a musical composition and its advertising the composers original ideas and intentions are sometimes completely lost. An example of this can be found in musical histories and the years around 1802. When Beethoven completed his "Sonata in C sharp Minor, Opus 27 No. 2," a music vendor, using his most latent ingenuity gave the work an additional title, probably to help the sales. He misinterpreted Beethoven's dreamy work and called it "Moonlight Sonata," a name that it has been applied to it ever since. The composer actually never had any intention of telling a love story or reflecting moonlight.

Melody of Music

Thousands and thousands of people come into actual contact with excellent "program music" and are completely unaware of it because its on the sound track helping a dramatic scene to be more expressive. Men of music like Alfred Steiner, Miklos Rozsa and specialists such as Louis Greenberg, Aaron Copland and Gail Kubik are responsible for some of the finest—but less appreciated—program music of modern times. Remember the film "Razor's Edge" and the French cafe music? The melody was simple, without words, and yet it was so moving and compelling that lyrics were finally added to satisfy the people who wanted something they could sing.

One of the most vivid, complete and realistic thunderstorms created by a full orchestra can be found on the N.B.C. Symphony orchestra's recording of Ferde Grofe's "Thunderstorm" from the Grand Canyon Suite.

Two Prowler Calls

Two prowler calls were received by the police Friday night but the police were unable to find any trace of a prowler upon their arrival. A neighborhood search was conducted on both calls, but no suspicious person was apprehended.

The first call was to the 1600 block on South Lamine avenue, at 7:30 o'clock.

The second call was to the residence of Robert Kahn, 202 South Prospect avenue, where a man was reported trying to force a window at the rear of the residence.

Losses, Medical Expenses, and Other Deductions

Losses from fire, storm, or other casualty, or theft	Cost of repairing roof hit by lightning	$.....144.00
Total Allowable Losses (not compensated by insurance or otherwise)		144.00

By RICHARD A. MULLENS
NEA Special Correspondent

If you itemize deductions on Form 1040, you can charge off in the schedule shown above, any net loss you suffered during 1949 from the destruction of your property in a fire, storm, flood, hurricane, or other similar casualty. You can deduct damages to your car even if caused by faulty driving but not if you were willfully negligent in allowing the accident to occur. Losses from theft are also deductible.

The Bureau instructions on computing the amount of the loss are as follows:

1. Determine the fair market value of the property just before the loss, and

2. Subtract both the salvage value after the loss and any insurance or damage awards you receive.

The fair market value of the property before and after the loss may be difficult to determine. Such things as repair bills, insurance adjuster's estimates, and police or fire department records may be good evidence of the amount of your loss. It is wise to include with any such deduction a statement explaining how the loss occurred and how you computed the amount of the loss.

Within certain limits you can deduct what the law considers unusual medical and dental expenses, provided you choose to itemize your deductions. Only those expenses in excess of 5% of your adjusted gross income (item 6, page 1) are deductible.

Hospital insurance premiums	$.....60.00
Hospital charges not covered, Glenrich Hospital, Dr. John ($100) and Dr. Paul ($77)	127.00
Drugs, medicines, X-ray, laboratory fees	41.05
Net Expenses (not compensated by insurance or otherwise)	228.05
Enter 5 percent of item 6, page 1, and subtract from Net Expenses	279.08
Allowable Medical and Dental Expenses. See Instructions for limitation.	17.47

Medical and dental expenses include any such amounts you paid in 1949 on yourself, your wife, all dependents claimed on your return, and even your child to whose support you contributed more than half, even though that child is not a legal dependent because he earned more than $500 during 1949.

Get together receipted bills and check stubs, and make notes of what you remember paying in cash. On the worksheet at the right show what you spent for each item. Add them up.

The "Insurance received" to be subtracted includes what you received from private policies, from workmen's compensation, from your employer either under contract or of his own good will (but not wages continued during illness which already show as income); or from any other person who contributed voluntarily or by court order because of his responsibility.

Now take 5% of item 6 on page 1 of the return. If your net medical expenses shown in this blank were more than 5% of item 6, you can deduct the difference. If not, you have no deduction.

If you have a deduction, list your expenditures in the Medical and Dental Expenses schedule of the return if it has room, or use a plain sheet of paper and attach it to the return. In either case, on the schedule's line for "Net Expenses," show the net amount computed on the blank. On the next printed line show 5% of item 6. Subtract that from your net expenses. The difference goes on the line at the extreme right of the printed schedule—with one limitation.

There is a limit to the amount you can deduct. This limit is computed as follows:

1. If you are claiming only your own personal exemption and no more in item 1, the limit is $1250.

2. If you are a single person, or a married person filing only for yourself, but claiming dependents, the limit is $2500;

3. If you are filing a joint husband-wife return, the limit is $1250 for each person for whom an exemption is claimed in item 1—not counting special exemptions for blindness or age—with a ceiling of $5000 no matter how many exemptions are claimed.

So, if your allowable medical expenses, in excess of 5% of item 6, were greater than this limit for your type of return, show the limit or ceiling figure instead of your own, in the right-hand column.

Among items that can NOT be deducted are life insurance premiums, funeral expenses, cemetery plots, the cost of illegal operations or drugs, the cost of travel suggested by your doctor "for rest" or "for a change."

This is the catch-all for deductions not taken elsewhere

EDITOR'S NOTE:

This is the twelfth of 14 authoritative, easy-to-follow articles in NEA's annual Income Tax Primer, made famous by the late S. Burton Heath. This year's Primer has been revised by Richard A. Mullens, a ranking Washington tax expert, creator of a widely-supported average tax plan, and graduate of the same training course that's given the federal agents who scan your return. As in all other years, it's been prepared in consultation with Bureau of Internal Revenue experts and shows the wage-earning taxpayer how to handle every item of his return with the least effort—and greatest accuracy.

Typical examples of items that can be deducted here are:

1. Expenses of earning your salary or wage. Any ordinary and necessary expenses which you incur for your employer's benefit are deductible. This includes dues, initiation fees, and assessments to labor unions and professional societies; entertainment of customers to promote specific deals, and not

Extend Deadline On Tax Paying

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—A 24-hour extension of the Jan. 15 deadline for some federal income tax payments is allowed this year because it falls on Sunday.

It doesn't affect wage-earners whose full income tax was withheld from their paychecks in 1949. The date concerns those making final quarterly payments on estimated 1949 taxes by persons whose taxes were withheld only partially or not at all and who have been making quarterly payments since March 15.

Persons making quarterly payments on their estimated tax, and not necessarily at fixed intervals, under court order—include separate maintenance (but not lump sum settlements, or payments made without court order).

3. Your share of mortgage interest and real estate taxes on a co-operative apartment.

4. Fees paid to lawyer or accountant for help in preparing your 1948 tax return.

Tomorrow: Selecting the best way to compute your tax.

who find they have underestimated by more than 20 per cent should make the correction and pay in full by Jan. 16 or be penalized. If they have underestimated, but by a smaller amount, but by a smaller amount, they may make their fourth quarterly return on Jan. 16 and pay the balance by March 15.

Farmers were not required to pay on 1949 taxes during that year. They can pay what they estimate they owe on Jan. 16, and if they've made a mistake they can pay anything else they owe by March 15. Or they can skip Jan. 16 and wait until Jan. 31. If they do they must pay in full on that day.

I Love My Doctor?

By Evelyn Barkins

XXX

"I KNEW something would happen," my mother wept, standing mournfully over my sickbed so that I began to listen for a eulogy. "It must have been some exposure that night the burglar came."

John always marvels at the perverse kind of satisfaction it seems to give most people, if they can find something concrete to blame an illness on. Every cold has a definite, identifiable draft for a sponsor; every headache has a specific parent too, from sinus to shrimps ("I knew they were spoiled!"). Indeed, there are no orphan complaints. John loves to tell about the man of 70, who in the final throes of a coronary thrombosis (formerly erroneously called "acute indigestion") shouted to his wife with whom he had just celebrated his golden wedding anniversary: "I'd never have gotten sick if I didn't eat the soup you made last night!"

If making a scapegoat out of a harmless drunk made Mother happy, I would be the last to object.

"Aren't you going to take her to a hospital?" my father, being a man of efficiency, asked next.

"I won't go," I shrieked, sitting straight up in bed. Never again will I laugh at the many people who protest to the bitter end that they "will die in their own beds." Not that I thought of really dying. The greatest safeguard against such hysteria that anyone can have is a good, strong ego, like mine, which says in moments of crisis, "This can't be happening to me!" and ends by coating everything with a protective layer of unreality.

But my mother ignored me, and spoke to John as if I weren't there. "She can't stay here," she said. "Who'll take care of her?" Freda, who had come in as soon as she had heard I was sick, via stand it any more: Maybe they mean well, and maybe I wouldn't mind so much if it were my toenails they kept looking at, but as it is, I...

Just then, another doctor came smiling into the doorway.

"Get him out of here," I shrieked, hiding in my bed.

"He's gone," John said, after a brief minute, and so he had. But with him had gone the information that poor Mrs. B. was out of her head and raving. "Isn't it too bad?" everyone said gleefully in the staff room.

FREDA was an unorthodox delight from start to finish. The nurse's training she referred to must have been purely in the aspirational stage, but her intentions, like Caesar's wife, were above suspicion. She did her work as if she had a handbook on nursing rolled up in her stocking for emergency consultation, and she found my common-sense lack of co-operation very disturbing.

Each morning, for instance, she wanted to change the linen. I held out for an extra day.

"We don't have enough sheets for daily changes," I said, "and soon I'll be lying on the bare mattress."

"Hospitals change every day," she replied dogmatically.

The battle raged good-humoredly from morning to morning, with the final score an even tie. On the days that Freda won, though, the resultant bedmaking was a Houdinian exhibition. She was supposed to be the master "now you see it, now you don't" magician, while I was assigned to the role of star trapeze artist, and was often left clinging by a single bar into empty space, without a safety net.

"I'm falling!" I would yell, and poor Freda would haul me back aboard by my nightgown. "You've pinned me under," was another SOS, and once, when the mad scramble was finished, we were all hilariously delighted to find that the clean sheet was on the floor in a heap, with the soiled one neatly and firmly tucked back on the bed.

Sedalia, Mo.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT AND CAPITAL
Sedalia, Mo., Sunday, January 15, 1950

"The beginning of a new decade is a good time to take a long view of where we have been and where we are going," according to Mrs. C. Vaughan Ferguson, president of the Girl Scouts of the United States of America at the conclusion of the greatest Girl Scout convention ever held, which ended in Milwaukee on November 18, attended by 6800, adults and Girl Scouts, who came from all parts of the country, and shared a common concern for the Girl Scouts of the United States and the world.

In 1940 our membership was 630,000. In 1950 we are serving more than a million girls—more than double the number we served in 1940.

We must accept a greatly increased responsibility for the greatly increased number of girls we serve. Realizing this, our national convention adopted an objective and three emphasis for the next two years: To further a voluntary partnership of girls and adults toward a stronger development of the spiritual values of the Girl Scout way of life as a bulwark of democracy; emphasizing—1. Better Scouting for more girls, stressing the idea of partnership between girls and adults. 2. Further development of international friendship. 3. More and better camping.

New Year's Wish

Continuing Mrs. Ferguson said: My New Year's wish for us all is that we may work together successfully to realize our objective: that as many girls as possible may come along with us in Girl Scouting as citizens of the world, to make democracy work.

Mrs. C. Arthur Freeberg, 1st deputy commissioner, presided over the first Girl Scout Council meeting of the New Year, Thursday morning at the Girl Scout office in the Court House, in the absence of Mrs. R. E. Gouge, commissioner. Other officers for 1950 are: Mrs. J. M. Bailey, 2nd deputy commissioner, and staff and office chairman; Mrs. Harold Dean, treasurer and finance chairman; Mrs. H. L. Baudendistel, secretary and public relations chairman; Mrs. C. D. Siegel, camp chairman; Mrs. L. H. Hodges, nominating and membership chairman; Mrs. Dimmitt Hoffman, organization chairman; Mrs. Philip McLaughlin, program chairman; and Mrs. Elmer Dillard, training chairman.

Look Out! Winter Is Not Over, Experts State

By Rowland Evans, Jr.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Weather experts, who rarely register surprise at the whims of the elements, admit they are amazed at the persistent and far above normal temperatures which have cloaked the Eastern U. S. since March, 1948.

They are saying, too, that there's a definite 50-year trend toward slightly warmer weather, not just in the east, but over many areas of the whole northern hemisphere.

Wilson H. Ahlmann, a noted Swedish glaciologist, says we are in a period of "climatic amelioration," with average temperatures slowly inching upwards. One piece of supporting evidence he offers is the retreat of many glaciers in Scandinavia and Iceland.

In this country, Jerome Namias, head of the weather bureau's extended forecast section, says "No one can know for sure whether it will continue getting warmer as it has for the past 50 years."

Excesses of Temperature
"Excesses of temperature over the east," he agrees, have been tremendous for the past year, but maybe it's strictly temporary."

He says two theories have been advanced to support the contentions of those who say it's getting hotter:

1. G. S. Callendar, an English meteorologist, claims there has been a slight increase in carbon dioxide in the air. This acts, he says, to prevent "out-going radiation" of the sun's heat after it has struck the earth's surface. Thus the earth retains more heat in something like the manner a hot-house will absorb and retain heat from the sun.

2. Something in the atmosphere has acted to bring steadily-increasing amounts of "maritime air," warmer air overlying oceans, into and over the continents. Namias says that possibly the quality of the sun's radiation could provoke this.

The Facts
Here are the facts, as produced by Namias and Libburn H. Seamon, of the weather bureau's climatology section.

The entire northeastern U. S. had its third warmest winter on record last year. The same section sweated its way through the hottest summer ever. New York City set a three-month record from June through August. Portland, Me., had its hottest June and July since the observation station was moved from town to the airport. Washington came up with all-time high temperatures for July.

But go back to March, 1948. From March through September, thermometers were above normal. October they went below, but only for a month.

Above Normal in November
By November they were far above normal and they stayed there all through winter, spring and summer. September, 1949, was below normal. By October the thermometer was again normal and stayed there the rest of 1949.

During the year New York City built up 1,550 degrees of temperature in excess of normal. This means that, on the average, each day last year was about 4.3 degrees warmer than 80-year-old records show it should have been. Seamon explains that "excess temperature" of 4.3 degrees is not surprising for two or three straight days maybe; but for a whole year it is "positively remarkable."

The trend toward higher-than-normal temperatures got an even bigger boost during the first 10 days of this month. From Jan. 3 through Jan. 10 Baltimore averaged a daily 21 degrees above normal, Washington 20 degrees, Asheville, N. C., 17. New York City broke four consecutive high records.

A "Hot Spell"
This was the "hot spell" which brought out the Johnny-jump-ups in Lancaster, Pa., and spring peeper frogs in New Jersey. The latter usually hibernate until late March or early April.

A small shaft of cold pierced the warm air last week-end from the west, and Washington got only one day of "normal" temperature. That was Sunday. But on Tuesday thermometers soared again, bringing more record high readings for the date all over the east.

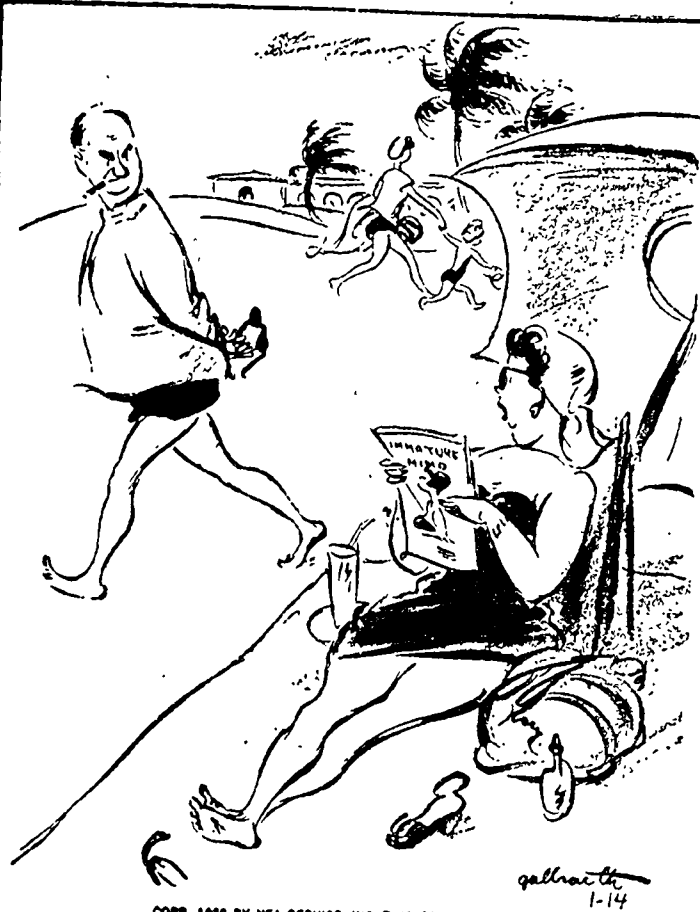

Snow has been practically absent from most parts of New England this winter. A fair snow cover resulted from a small storm the end of November. Another fall came on Dec. 3, but the snow all but disappeared a week later. Thousands of skiers cancelled Christmas and New Year skiing trips. No snow.

Will it last all winter?

Low Temperatures
"We know there has been an abnormal containment of cold, polar air over the Alaskan Yukon and Northern Canada," Namias says. "Our reports tell of temperatures down to 60 degrees below zero in central Sweden, colder than Norway, where it's been down to 40 below."

"But right now this cold air is pretty generally trapped by the exceptionally high speed of the prevailing westerly winds. The recent trend suggests that as this cold polar air builds up and up it will start to break through and bring us a chilly February and March, particularly in the east. It is already breaking through in places, Namias points out. California's citrus crop has suffered some damage, but nothing like the losses of January, 1949. And temperatures in Montana, the Dakotas and other midwest and southwest areas have been well above normal.

Twelve Die
In Crash of
Army Glider

Winging in for Landing Near
Ft. Benning, Ga.

FORT BENNING Ga., Jan. 14—(AP)—Twelve men died today when an airforce glider tipped a wing on a runway and crashed, strewn bodies and wreckage over 700 feet.

Five men were in the hospital at nearby Lawson airbase, four in serious condition.

Cause of the crash was not known.

Ten of the victims were members of Company A, airborne battalion. The other two victims, both of whom died in the hospital, were the pilot and the instructor.

The crash was the first fatal accident at the glider school since 1946 when one man was killed.

Capt. A. C. Parker of the infantry center public relations office said 15 of the men aboard were student paratroopers who were taking glider training in conjunction with their airborne training.

All of the students were scheduled to make their final jumps tomorrow and receive the insignia—curved wings surrounding a parachute—of the paratrooper.

The glider, Capt. Parker added, was one of two just released by a tow plane. The second landed safely.

As the glider settled noiselessly toward the runway, said eyewitnesses, a wing dipped and scraped the ground, swinging the craft in an arc downward.

The glider bounced into the air again while debris flew in all directions, then came down hard and skidded 500 feet, disintegrating in the process.

An eyewitness to the crash was
Major Lloyd Willis of Hartford,
Ala., who said:

"I saw the glider coming in to land. Apparently the left wing hit the ground causing it to crash.
The glider just disintegrated."

Major Willis, an instructor in the air landing group of the airborne department of the infantry center, said he was about a 1,000 feet away at the time of the crash.

Another eyewitness, Corporal
James P. Hari of Detroit, Mich., said he watched the two gliders making a normal approach to the runway.

For a moment, he continued, he turned to observe the tow plane and when he turned back one of the gliders was "a pile of debris."
Hari said that as the crash placed Texans," who are "suffering" through New York's shortage.

crews started on their grim mission. he observed the glider through binoculars and "what I thought was debris turned out to be bodies."

The names of the dead and injured could not be obtained immediately, pending notification of next of kin.

Air Experts Fear Speed of The Jet Age is Slowing Down Interest in Aviation

JET-ROCKET FIGHTER: Is the "wild blue yonder" too wild?

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Military and civilian air officials are worried that flying is getting to fast and furious to be fun and that the "wild blue yonder" is losing its glamor.

This problem has a serious bearing on the future development of American aviation, the experts say.

As far as military flying is concerned, it's a matter of flight personnel morale and recruiting difficulty. In civil aviation it's a question of possible widespread loss of interest in personal flying.

A Civil Aeronautics Administration study reveals a sharp drop in the number of applications for student permits last year. The pre-war high was 1940 with 110,000 applications. For 1949 the total was less than 45,000. In 1948 there were 117,000 applications for student permits.

This same situation is reflected by figures from the Air Force. An analysis of two recent cadet classes revealed one with 80 per cent and the other with 60 per cent of the students having less than two years of college. Pre-war classes averaged more than 95 per cent of students as college graduates. An AF spokesman who has been studying the problem explains:

"The boys with more than two years of college or with degrees just aren't interested in flying as a career the way they used to be. Colleges seem to be advising them against it."

Other evidence from the Air Force reveals a sharp increase in the hazards of military flying since the war. It can be tied in with the changed attitude among pilots and crewmen toward flight duty.

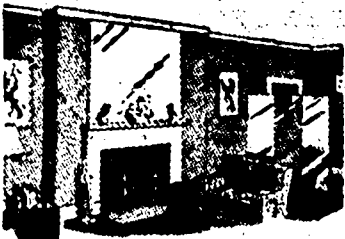

AF Maj. Gen. Richard E. Nugent reveals that the post-war rate of pilots killed in air accidents has increased 25 per cent over pre-war. He adds: "Flight duty is five times more dangerous than regular AF ground duty, and the death rate of military pilots is more than 20 times that of commercial airline pilots."

Reason for this, he says, is because "supersonic speeds with jet propulsion, rocket propulsion with its problems of compressibility, methods of escape through ejection, and the effects of . . . gravity forces as they approach human limits, are an integral part of current and future military flying."

This increased danger of flying is in part credited with the amazing reaction the Air Force got when it offered a large group of reserve pilots on active duty the choice of getting out of the service or taking ground duty, at a considerable drop in salary. About 98 per cent were willing to take the cut and give up their wings.

The comment of one of those pilots adds this to the subject: "Most Air Force pilots are about 32 or older. Flying has long since stopped being the fun we thought it was when we were just out of college. It's strictly a job now. On top of that most of us have families. Our combat records prove that we aren't cowards, but each time we fly we are aware of the statistics."

FLYING SAUCERS? SURE, HE'S GOT 'EM—Most of the flying-saucer stories are a little on the vague side. But Dr. E. W. Kay of Glendale, Calif., above, has a flying saucer that he built himself and that he believes will revolutionize aviation. His 41-inch, 20-pound test model rises from the ground and spins in a 36-foot circle at 72 miles an hour. Vanes on the rim of the whirling disk open by centrifugal force, making it act like a helicopter. Once in the air, the vanes can be closed and the disk scoots away like a whirling top. U. S. Air Force officials recently watched a test flight of Dr. Kay's revolutionary flying disk.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hansen of near Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hansen, Dwayne, Darryel and Janice of Warsaw, route 1, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hansen, Gerald, Judith and Jimmie, of Ottumwa, Mr. and Mrs. John Hansen, Norma Jean and Johnnie Dale of Sedalia and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hansen.

Crossroads Comment

by G. H. S.

Millions of people believed that Franklin D. Roosevelt was right in most of his opinions, except this one:

"Any government, like any family, can for a year spend a little more than it earns. But you and I know that a continuance of that habit means the poorhouse."

You can't go to a poorhouse if there aren't any poorhouses—and there won't be any when everybody gets that $200 pension, and every family has $12,000 income.

One thing about it, advocates of the welfare state have made it unnecessary to import opium from China.

If the nation succeeds eventually in its welfare program so there are no more poor people we will not have to contend with the axiom of old Ben Franklin who said: "For every poor man there are an hundred indigent."

Then, like a governmental prestidigitator with his wand-waving legerdemain, when we eliminate every poor man one hundred indigent must disappear.

The national magic of the 1950's intrigues us!

In ordinary flight, a stork makes two wing-strokes per second; and a pelican, only one and one-sixth. Since a pelican gets where it's going with less exertion, one wonders why that bird instead of the stork was not chosen as the proverbial purveyor of babies.

In Germany, during World War II, synthetic butter was made from coal. In America, if John L. Lewis' reign continues, the time may come when we will have to make synthetic coal out of butter.

The peril to moral progress remains in inaction rather than action; not in what we should not do but in what we ought to do.

If you chance upon a man's bed that smells like a dog kennel, give second thought to branding him shiftless and slovenly; it may be a small dog loves him.

Some may say the widest chasm is the unreconciled differences between Russia and the U.S.A. A wider one is that between what a seller thinks his house is worth and what the buyer thinks it's worth.

Many Central Missourians continue to complain about the inaccuracies of the Kansas City weather bureau predictions. But there is a three or four hour time lag, and longer, before some Kansas City weather reaches Sedalia. Very often some of the conditions prevalent in Kansas City never reach Central Missouri at all. Ninety miles make a lot of difference.

For instance Thursday night one of the worst fog blankets in many years lay for fifty miles on the area between Kansas City to Pittsville and just lay there for hours. It never did spread east to Central Missouri. Driving was extremely hazardous.

The Kansas City weather bureau predictions are published in Sedalia for whatever use anyone wants to make of them. Personally I like a little salt with them.

Someone suggests Sedalia ought to have its own weather prognosticator. Now if someone will please volunteer since it is becoming unpopular to ask the government to take on more financial obligations.

Individual decision! The importance of that factor in a Christian democracy was stressed in a talk by the Rev. Edward Wells, Episcopal bishop-elect, before a Kansas City audience.

There are two angles to individual decision. One man can reach an individual decision and force or persuade his opinion on hundreds of thousands to gain power for himself. Comes totalitarianism or something as bad; national immorality, sprouting seeds of world conquest and persecution. The masses become as putty in the hands of power drunk individuals who appeal to the cupidity of those who do not think for themselves.

While freedom lasts, the individual may make his own decisions. And he should always make them if he intends to preserve the freedom that permits this. Individual decisions based on reasoning and knowledge of the moral concepts of life and the living of it with other people, when allowed expression, will find the masses dominating any situation that might otherwise imperil their liberties.

Before Giving Aid to Formosa. We Must Study Risks Involved

By Bruce Blossat

Remember Argrykstron? You're rare if you do. But the tides of the Greek-Italian war once swirled about that little Albanian town and it was much in the news.

Today most of the world is at peace. But the strange place names still keep hitting us between the eyes. Right now the magic word is "Formosa."

Former President Hoover, Senator Taft and some military leaders talk of using the American Navy to defend Formosa, or maybe setting up bases there. Where and what is this place that has everyone so excited?

It's an island about twice as big as New Jersey, located 100 miles off the South China coast. The 6,500,000 inhabitants, most with a strong flair for independence, have a rich stock of mineral resources and rely chiefly on crops like rice, sugar cane, tea and sweet potatoes. There are good harbors and 70 air strips.

The Chinese ceded the island to Japan after a war in 1895. Not until the Japs were beaten in World War II in 1945 did China get the place back—unofficially. (It can't be official until there's a Japanese peace treaty.)

Chiang Kai-shek thrust the island into the headlines when he made it the last bastion of his Nationalist forces against the victorious Chinese Reds. The State Department now discloses that Chiang already has appealed for U. S. help in defending the island.

The statesmen and military men who favor extreme measures to save Formosa argue that in Communist hands it would be a serious strategic threat to our outposts in the Philippines and Okinawa. Some of the statesmen contend, too, that a non-Communist Formosa would stand for hope that some day the Chinese mainland would again be free.

Before we consider giving money or advice to Chiang's government, we should learn whether his armies have any more will to resist on Formosa than they did on the mainland. If Nationalist morale has not improved, help from us now would have even less meaning than any we might have given while Chiang still held forth in China proper.

Secondly, we ought to have a completely clear idea of the island's military value. If it is really vital to our outer rim of Pacific defenses, as many suggest, then extreme measures of protection might be warranted.

But we should then have to face the fact that using our armed forces could involve us in major war, should Russia come to the Reds' aid. We should also have to recognize that any extreme action by us would almost certainly be frowned on by our friends in other Asiatic countries. And we should have to decide whether holding Formosa means enough to balance these substantial risks.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Frankie Costello's Power Reaches Inside The Federal Government;

By Drew Pearson

(ED. NOTE—This is the second of Drew Pearson's columns on gambling racketeers and how they affect our various branches of government.)

WASHINGTON.—In 1932, when Franklin Roosevelt advocated the repeal of prohibition, one big argument was that liquor racketeers had become a law unto themselves, a group above the government. That argument was valid. But now the old liquor racketeers have moved into the gambling racket where they still remain a law unto themselves.

Last year a rash of stories on Frankie Costello were published by Time, Newsweek and Edward Follard of the Washington Post, a great newspaperman. These stories told how Costello lunched in style at the Waldorf, wore custom-made clothes, owned an office building on Wall Street.

Unwittingly, these articles tended to paint such a glorified picture of America's No. 1 gambler that an impressionable youngster might have been persuaded that this was the life for him.

It was even pointed out that Costello still lived with the same wife; completely ignoring the files of the New York police department which are filled with recordings of obscene telephone conversations between Costello and a score of mistresses.

The tragic fact is that Costello and the gang leaders he represents have succeeded to an amazing degree not only in making crime pay but in making it respectable. That is not a lesson that we want taught our youth.

Furthermore, when any one group in our society sets itself up as more powerful than another, democracy breaks down.

Costello Could Be Deported

Hitherto Costello's chief influence has been in the big cities—New York, Miami and Los Angeles. But now he appears to be able to reach inside the federal government.

The amazing fact is that Costello could be deported from the United States and sent back to Italy tomorrow if the Justice Department wanted to. For, when Costello swore out his American citizenship papers in 1925, he perjured himself regarding his criminal record. Countless other immigrants have been deported for doing exactly the same thing, but they have lacked something which Costello has—influence.

At this very moment, another immigrant, Harry Bridges, is on trial in San Francisco on exactly the same charge—perjury in connection with his citizenship papers.

This column holds no brief for Bridges. But everyone should be treated equally. And it's an ironic fact that "Jiggs" Donohue, a private attorney who has had contacts with the Maragon-Costello crowd, is now retained by the Justice Department to prosecute Bridges.

Costello's Partners

President Truman, I am convinced, knows nothing about Costello influence inside the government and would not stand for it if he did. Nevertheless, Costello appears to have a powerful friend inside the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and this column has previously published the details on the fixing of a federal tax-fraud case involving Los Angeles gamblers.

Last summer, Sen. Clyde Hoy's investigating committee also stumbled onto the fact that ex-White House friend John Maragon, now under indictment, had been employed by Costello's partner, "Dandy Phil" Kastel, and that Bill Helis, the "Golden Greek," another partner of Costello's, had been a contributor to the Truman campaign.

Maragon was found to have a secret banking account in El Paso, Texas, which over a period of time contained as much as $135,000—a lot of money for a man who complained that his salary averaged around $4,000 annually.

Abundant Living

by

E. STANLEY JONES

Luke 17:20—21; Rom. 14:17; Heb. 8:10

THE KINGDOM OF GOD IS WITHIN YOU

The central theme of my last preceding book, Is the Kingdom of God Realism? is the statement of Jesus: "The kingdom of God is within you." He said this not to His Disciples, but to the Pharisees, unchanged people. Is the Kingdom of God then in us all, changed and unchanged? Yes. Of course, it is true that those who have been spiritually changed "see," "submit to," "enter," and "inherit" the Kingdom of God in a way the unchanged do not. The changed have related themselves to the laws of the Kingdom and to the God of the Kingdom, and therefore receive the resources of the Kingdom—the sum total of that Kingdom works with them and not against them. Those who are unchanged find the Kingdom is within them, but they are at cross-purposes with it. In the changed person the kingdom works as self-realization, and in the other as self-frustration. But in both it is there.

The laws of our being are not other than the laws of God—they are the laws of God. These laws are not something imposed on the situation, but are written into the very structure of our being, into our tissues, our nerve cells, our blood stream, into the total organization of our life. They are the way we are made to live. Just as the engineer stamps within an engine which he constructs a way to work, and if it obeys that way it works well and harmoniously; so God has stamped within the structure of our being His Kingdom. The Old Testament calls this stamp "making men in his own image." If we live according to it, we live. If we don't, we don't. A railway engine is made to run on tracks, and if it remains on the tracks it finds its freedom, pulls its load, and gets to its destination. But if, in order to gain its freedom, it jumps the tracks, the result is not freedom, but ruin to itself and everybody concerned. There is a trackage to freedom, to efficiency, to full living, built into your being and mine. It is the Kingdom of God—it is within you.

O God, I have looked for Thee to rend the heavens and come down, and here I find Thy footsteps within my own being. Thou hast traced Thy way in my make-up. Thou hast been so near I have run afoul of Thee and thought I was only running afoul of law. Forgive me. Amen.

(From the book "Abundant Living," published by Abingdon-Cokesbury Press of New York and Nashville. Copyright.)

Furthermore, most of Maragon's transactions were in cash—the coin of the underworld.

Maragon and General Vaughan also had enough power inside the Truman administration to overrule a housing order against the remodeling of California's Tanforan race track after being introduced to the track's owners by Costello's partner, Helis.

Though Costello probably makes most of his money in gambling, one source of revenue is his partnership with "Dandy Phil" Kastel, Bill Helis and Irving Haim, as sales agents for House of Lords and King's Ransom whiskeys. When Republican Senators stumbled into this connection last summer, Helis immediately issued a vigorous denial. He said that at no time had he ever been associated with Costello in connection with the Whiteley company, owners of House of Lords and King's Ransom.

The Official Record

However, here is part of the official, though confidential record regarding the partnership of White House friend Bill Helis, Frankie Costello, and "Dandy Phil" Kastel.

NOV. 8, 1937—A note for $225,000 to Irving Haim at the Whitney National Bank in New Orleans was endorsed by Phil Kastel, William Helis and Frank Costello.

IN 1938—Kastel owed C. D. Jennings of Chicago $45,000 for slot machines. So a note for the debt was signed by Kastel and Robert Friedberg with Alliance Distributors stock certificates put up as collateral. Alliance Distributors is the name under which Costello, Kastel and Helis operate. To meet the note Alliance Distributors arranged to sell 2,000 cases of whiskey and turn the proceeds over to C. D. Jennings.

AUG. 23, 1938—Bill Helis paid Irving Haim's note for $225,000 at the Whitney National Bank with his personal check for that amount.

SEPT. 15, 1938—An agreement was executed between Irving Haim and William Helis giving Helis an interest in J. G. Turney and Sons, LTD., the holding company for King's Ransom and House of Lords whiskeys.

SEPT. 16, 1938—A receipt was signed by Helis for 10,000 ordinary shares and 35,000 preferred shares of stock.

Who Told the Lie?

SEPT. 1, 1939—Lloyd Cobb, Helis' man in New Orleans, wrote A. G. Reynolds, Helis' man in London, enclosing a clipping from the Washington Merry-Go-Round, linking Helis to Frank Costello.

JAN. 13, 1941—An interoffice memo, from A. G. Reynolds indicated that Phil Kastel's $100,000 note and Haim's $225,000 note hadn't been paid. The memo referred to a letter agreement between Helis and Haim whereby both notes would be repaid by Haim.

JULY 27, 1943—George Uffner came to New York from New Orleans to see Costello. Costello, calling Uffner on the phone said: "You and Bill Helis meet me in the lobby tonight at seven o'clock. If Allfange wants to see me that will be all right." (Dean Allfange is Helis' lawyer, who also issued a denial last summer that Helis was ever connected with Costello).

FEB. 1947—Helis, when interviewed by the New York State Liquor Authority, stated that Haim had paid all money owed him, and that he and Haim now owned equal shares in J. G. Turney and Son.

AUGUST 1949—William Helis denied to the press that he had ever been associated with Frank Costello in connection with the Whiteley company, the wholly owned subsidiary of J. G. Turney and Son.

KING SOLOMON

Editor's Note: This is the 16th of a series from the Old Testament. The text is condensed from selections by Houston Harle for the book, "In Our Image." Illustrations by Guy Rowe also from the book.

Now the days of David drew nigh that he should die; and he slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David. Then sat Solomon upon the throne of David his father; and his kingdom was established greatly.

In Gideon the Lord appeared to Solomon in a dream by night; and God said, Ask what I shall give thee. And Solomon said, Thou hast shewed unto thy servant David my father great mercy, according as he walked before thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with thee; and thou hast kept for him this great kindness, that thou has given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day. And now, O Lord my God, I am but a little child: I know not how to go out or come in. Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad; for who is able to judge this thy so great a people? And the speech pleased the Lord.

And God said, Behold, I have done according to thy words: I have given thee a wise and understanding heart; so that there was none like thee before, neither after shall any rise like thee. I have also given which thou hast not asked, both riches, and honour; so that there shall not be any among the kings like unto thee all thy days. And if thou wilt walk in my ways, to keep my statutes and my commandments, I will lengthen thy days. And Solomon awoke and came to Jerusalem, and stood before the ark of the covenant of the Lord; and offered up burnt offerings, and offered peace offerings, and made a feast to all his servants.

Then came there two women unto the king. And the one woman said, O my lord, I and this woman dwell in one house; and I was delivered of a child with her in the house. And the third day after I was delivered, this woman was delivered also; and we were together; there was no stranger with us in the house, save we two in the house. And this woman's child died in the night; and she arose at midnight and took my son from beside me and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom. And when I rose in the morning to give my child suck, behold, it was dead; but when I considered it in the morning, behold, it was not my son. And the other woman said, the living is my son, and the dead is thy son.

Then said the king, The one saith, This is my son that liveth and the other saith, Nay; thy son is the dead, and my son is the living.

And the king said, Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword.

The Doctor Says—If the Gallbladder is Inflamed, Operation is Often Considered

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Each year thousands of patients have to submit to an operation involving removal of the gallbladder. In some cases this is because stones are present in the gallbladder. In some cases this is because wall or lining of the gallbladder becomes inflamed, producing pain and other symptoms.

Now the gallbladder lies under the liver and ribs on the right side. It is shaped like a small pear and is hollow. In the human body its principal function seems to be to store bile, a substance manufactured in the liver, emptied into the intestines and useful in digestion, particularly the digestion of fatty substances.

When the bile does not flow freely, germs can grow inside the gallbladder and other irritations and troubles can develop. In addition to the formation of stones in the gallbladder, the gallbladder can become acutely or chronically inflamed. If the inflammation or infection comes on suddenly the condition is called acute cholecystitis. This is often accompanied by pain on the right side of the abdomen which sometimes extends through to the back under the right shoulder blade.

The chronic form of cholecystitis has much the same symptoms as the acute variety but they are not so severe. Almost always there is some disturbance in the digestive tract and people almost always complain of a "full feeling," "gas on the stomach," or similar vague distress.

Sometimes inflammation of the gallbladder can be improved by giving chemical substances by mouth which stimulate the emptying of the gallbladder. This is not always successful, however, and when it is not, operation to remove the organ has to be seriously considered.

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

Man's Age-Old Dream of controlled flight came true when the Wright Brothers, Orville and Wilbur, made the first successful mechanical "aeroplane" flight near Kitty Hawk, N. C., on Dec. 17, 1903. In the familiar picture (top) Wilbur Wright runs alongside the kite-like plane. Neither pioneer could foresee the incredibly rapid growth of the art of flying nor how man's complete mastery of the air would revolutionize warfare and peacetime transportation. Below is a symbol of aviation's advance—the new found power of jet and rocket engines that has made the speed of sound seem laggard. But to remain aloft, today's mightiest aircraft utilize the basic principles of flight worked out by the once ridiculed Brothers Wright.

COP GETS "BUCK FEVER"—After "Stumpy," the deer, broke his leg, patrolman Thomas Flaherty of Pittsburgh was ordered to shoot him. Flaherty took one look at the helpless animal, called a veterinarian and had the broken leg set. Here, Stumpy's friend shows his appreciation with a kiss from Patrolman Flaherty.
